RWANDA ADOPTS A GLOBAL STANDARD TO STRENGTHEN THE GOVERNANCE OF GRANT FUNDING.

25 Aug 2018 by Funds Beeline editor

According to The African Academy of Sciences (The AAS) website, Rwanda has broken new ground to become the first African country to adopt a global standard that promotes transparency and strengthens the governance of grant funding worldwide.

The website reports that AAS and the African Organization for Standardization (ARSO) developed the Good Financial Grant Practice (GFGP) standard in a three-year process involving many workshops and stakeholders from across the globe that defined, tested and endorsed it. Conformity to the requirements of the standard is performed through an online self-assessment tool (Global Grant Community Portal) in which community-based organizations, NGOs, research and academic institutions of any size can rate their capabilities to manage funding.

Rwanda is said to adopt the GFGP standard as part of a new three-year cooperative agreement signed today between The AAS and the Rwanda Standards Board (RSB) to foster interaction, knowledge sharing and the
